Vasa Museum

The Vasa sank in Stockholm in 1628 on its maiden voyage. In 1961, after 333 years on the sea bed, the mighty warship was salvaged and restored. Today Vasa is the world's only preserved 17th century ship and the most visited museum in Scandinavia.

A guided tour will show you one of the largest conservation projects in the world. After the tour you are welcome to stay at the museum and explore on your own.

Visiting address: Galärvarvsvägen 14. Map.

Swedish National Archives

The Swedish National Archives are one of Sweden's oldest public authorities, 400 years old. They collect and preserve records from government, public bodies, organisations and individuals from the Middle Ages onwards. One of their missions is to make this cultural heritage available.

The Swedish National Archives houses collections on seven different sites. The tour will take you to Riksarkivet Marieberg, built in 1968 when the cold war was in full bloom. The storage areas are therefore built under earth. The main focus will be the building and a later renovation and the work with IPM. A comparison will also be done with the ongoing building project outside Stockholm to where the Military Archives will be moved.

Visiting address: Fyrverkarbacken 13. Map.

Swedish Museum of Natural History

The Swedish Museum of Natural History is a government agency. Our task is to promote interest in, and knowledge and research on, the origins and development of the universe and Earth, on the plant and animal worlds and on the biology and natural environment of human beings.

A guided tour will show you one of the largest and most frequented of the museums in Sweden. The tour will take you partly behind the scene to look at some of the challenges with IPM in a house that is now more than 100 years old. After the tour you are welcome to stay at the museum and explore the exhibitions on your own.

Visiting address: Frescativägen 40. Map.

National Library of Sweden

The National Library of Sweden (Kungliga biblioteket, KB) is a government authority. The collections go back more than a thousand years and grow by the day. KB collect, preserve and make available almost everything that is published in Sweden – from manuscripts, books and newspapers to music, television shows and photographs.

The tour will take you behind the scenes, where you will learn about their experiences with implementing IPM in an older building. This process has involved developing completely new routines for the involved staff, rearranging the premises, and building a space for intake, unpacking, and quarantine. Their intent is to follow the Spectrum model for the entire donation process.

Hallwyl Museum

Enter the home of Count and Countess Walther and Wilhelmina von Hallwyl, one of Stockholm's most eccentric and engaging museums. This palatial residence was built as a winter home for the immensely rich couple. Today the Hallwyl Museum is a state museum within the National Historical Museums (SHM), a government agency tasked with promoting knowledge of and interest in Sweden's history and with preserving and developing the cultural heritage that the agency administers.

The Hallwyl House was completed in 1898. It was built to accommodate the family, the rich collections and office for the big forest companies that provided everything. Wilhelmina von Hallwyl not only created a museum but also a network of competent people with knowledge within collections management. Paintings from the Dutch Golden Age and Chinese porcelain are shown side by side with everyday things from the house. During the guided tour we discuss how temporary exhibitions, loans and the situation in the centre of the city's party district challenges and enriches the museum activities.

Nordic Museum

The Nordic Museum is Sweden's largest museum of cultural history with more than one and a half million objects in storages, exhibitions, palace and manors. The collections reflect life in Sweden from the 16th century to the present day.

The tour will take you behind the scene to the conservation studio and to some of the exhibitions where the conservators will share how they work with the museums IPM-program. You are welcome to continue to the rest of the exhibitions after the tour.

Visiting address: Djurgårdsvägen 6-16. Map.

Extra excursion Friday 24 May 2019

Skokloster Castle

Skokloster Castle was built in the baroque style between 1654 and 1676 and is one of the mayor monuments from the historic period when Sweden was one of the most powerful countries in Europe.

We are happy to offer you a one-day excursion to Skokloster. This Baroque castle is a unique stately home created by the 17th century nobleman Carl Gustaf Wrangel. Throughout the years, this non-heated building has remained amazingly untouched. Skokloster is interesting also from an IPM point of view, and we will get a behind the scene look at the challenges with indoor climate, and actions to prevent pests and mould. You may find it interesting to know that Skokloster Castle has been selected to host the Getty Foundation Summer Institute in June 2019, a 13-day collections-based seminar for the study of canvas paintings at Skokloster Castle.

Note! An extra fee of 625 SEK incl. VAT will be charged for this excursion (bus journey, lunch and coffee included).

Skokloster is situated on a peninsula in Lake Mälaren between Stockholm, Uppsala and Enköping, near Sigtuna and Arlanda. A bus will depart from Stockholm to Skokloster in the morning at about 08:00 and take us home in the afternoon (back in Stockholm at about 16.30). Map.
